WHY Concordia?

Pride, tradition, atmosphere, academics and much more

Concordia University has a reputation for attracting some of the most academically and athletically gifted young women and men in Canada and from around the world. We asked several members of the sports teams to explain why they chose to attend Concordia university and to compete for the Stingers. Below are the answers:

*Great city. Great school. Great team.
I want to be part of it all.*

*Excellent programme scolaire et sportif.
Université anglaise dans un environnement français (bilingue).*

Different cultural surroundings.

Pride.

Because I grew up watching the Stingers and wanted to be a part of it.

It's the only school that has an Athletic Therapy program and great hockey. Who could ask for more?

To make something of myself for the future.

I chose to come here because it is a great school and to be part of the tradition here at Concordia.

To get a good education in English, because Concordia is renowned for its Communications Studies program and I like the atmosphere around the sports complex.

C'est la meilleure place pour s'améliorer.

A great coach, a winning attitude, small and homey, and I felt that it was at Concordia that I could get the best possible education for me.

A good team, a good Psychology program, not expensive and great guys on the team.

For the Accounting program.

Good university. Good faculty.

Parce que je voulais apprendre l'anglais et faire mes études tout en jouant du hockey de compétition pour continuer ma progression.

I decided to attend Concordia because the school is well known for its Communications program and it would be very special to play for the Stingers.

Professional style offence. Great coaching. Great football atmosphere.

I chose Concordia because of its Athletic Therapy program, the City of Montreal and to improve my French.

Because I heard about Stinger pride.

Selon moi, c'était les meilleurs du Québec.

Because it's a good place to learn to train well and to become disciplined in school as well as hockey.

I chose Concordia for its good reputation in Commerce and to compete for the Stingers because I'm looking for a high level of competition.

The Exercise Science program, the city and to play for one of the best teams in Canada.

It's close to home. It's a good organization. It's a friendly environment.

Academically a great school.

Pour sa réputation et les Stingers auront une très bonne équipe.

Because it's a good team for tradition.

A great coaching staff and a great city.

To get out of Ontario.

I know the football team has the No. 1 defense in the nation.

CIAU women's hockey championship returns to Concordia

The Stingers won the first two championships, but can they make it three in a row in February?

Challenging the limits in leadership, personal growth and competition against others are hallmarks of Concordia University and its predecessors – Loyola College and Sir George Williams University. So it's not surprising that the department of recreation and athletics pursued and was awarded one of the most respected women's hockey competitions in the world.

Concordia University will host the Third annual Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union (CIAU) women's ice hockey championship from Feb. 24-27. The inaugural tournament was also held at Concordia in 1998.

"From a university point of view, it reinforces our position as the established leaders in the sport," said Les Lawton, head coach of the Stingers women's hockey program and one of the tournament organizers. "It also provides us with the opportunity to raise the standards by which women's competitions are measured — both on and off the ice."

The national tournament will be a six-team competition, with two teams from Quebec, two teams from Ontario and one each from the West and the East. There will be two pools of three teams. After round-robin play is complete, the top teams in each pool will advance to the gold medal game on Sunday, Feb. 27. The second-place finishers will compete for the bronze medal and the third-place teams will play for fifth place.

TSN and RDS will televise the gold medal game, which is scheduled for 7 p.m., while CTV's Sportsnet will broadcast the bronze medal game, beginning at 11 a.m.

As the host, Concordia has an automatic berth in the championship. However, if the Stingers, who are the two-time defending national champions, win the Quebec conference playoffs, the runners-up will compete in the host's spot.

Having won 12 of the last 15 Quebec university championships, Lawton is sure Concordia can qualify for the final six at the nationals even without an automatic berth. However, it does make for some interesting planning for the Stinger coaching staff.

"When you know you are going to be there, you can build toward it during the season," Lawton said. "Now the championship tournament is part of the journey, not the destination."

Lawton and the Stingers have their eyes set on winning a third straight title, but win or lose, the coach feels hosting the nationals is a great way to contribute to the progression of women's hockey in Canada.

"This is a step in the right direction for women's hockey," he said. "I think collegiate hockey is the future of the sport. In a few years from now, I'm sure the majority of national team players will come from the university level. And who knows – the day when there's a world university championship may not be too far away."

For information on sponsorship and tickets call (514) 848-3898. During the tournament, results will be available by calling (514) 848-3888 and on the Concordia web site at www.concordia.ca/stingers.

TRUE GRIT

Attitude makes Charette a force on and off the ice.

If you were going to put together a tribute to Alexandre Charette, the captain of the Concordia men's hockey team, the most appropriate title would be True Grit. Not that the fourth-year Stinger left wing is a gunslinger like John Wayne, but you would be hard pressed to find a more tenacious, strong-willed and resolute young man.

At the start of the 1998-'99 campaign, Charette was expected to play a moderate leadership role as an assistant captain and to continue his work on Concordia's defensive line. He didn't exactly follow the script. When a couple of top players struggled with injuries, Charette stepped up, filling the gap in both the leadership and scoring departments.

He wore the "C" for about half the games last season and was named captain of the 1999-2000 Stingers last September.

"I like the responsibility," he admits. "It helps me push myself. I don't have the natural ability some players have. If I want to succeed and help my team, I have to be aggressive and work hard every shift. I know I have to set an example."

The feistiness rubs off on the Stingers. With Charette leading the way, the team posted a 16-7-3 record in the OUA and held a Top Veteran winger Alexandre Charette is a three time Academic All-Canadian and honor student.

10 ranking throughout the 1998-'99 season, reaching the No. 2 spot on Feb. 8. Once again his character is evident with the hard-nosed 1999-2000 squad, which is both intimidating and awe-inspiring when on its game.

In 1998-99 Charette was the Stingers' top scorer with 11 goals and 28 assists. He was the fifth-leading scorer in the OUA and he finished 16th in the country. This year he's on a pace that will see him match his previous offensive output.

Charette takes the same devotion to the classroom. When the Mascouche, Que., native arrived at Concordia in the fall of 1996, he couldn't speak much English. But it wasn't an obstacle — it only meant that he had to work harder. In each of his three years at the university, he has been an honor student and a CIAU Academic All-Canadian. Only two other student-athletes have matched his accomplishments, and they were both fluent in English when they started at Concordia.

The future is bright for Charette, who is considering playing hockey in Europe after completing his university degree in Economics. Then he'd like to embark on a career in banking or financial planning. In the meantime, he has some unfinished business to attend to at Concordia.

"We may be ranked high, but we have to think about doing better," Charette said. "We have to get out of our conference in the playoffs this year. We have the players, especially with our new recruits. It's our attitude we have to work on. The veterans have to get all the young guys rowing in the right direction and we have to have a positive attitude."

If Charette's involved and it's simply a case of mind over matter, you have to like the Stingers' chances.

THE SOUL TO DARE

Wrestler Tamara Medwidsky has soared to the top of her sport

When Sir Walter Scott wrote about the will to do and the soul to dare it's as if he was writing about Concordia wrestler Tamara Medwidsky.

In less than four years, Medwidsky, 25, has taken a chance encounter and turned into an opportunity to represent her sport at the highest level in the world.

At the University of Toronto athletic centre in the summer of 1996, Medwidsky was minding her own business when a coach approached her and suggested she try wrestling.

"At first I just laughed," she admits, "but everyday on my way home from work I walked by a kick-boxing place and I thought I might like to try it. So when wrestling came up I decided to give it a chance. At first I went and watched two practices, and I said, 'OK, let's go. I want to give this a try!'"

After a year of training in her hometown of Toronto, she came to Montreal to work with coach Victor Zilberman and to Concordia to begin a graduate diploma in sports administration.

By the spring of 1998, wrestling at 70 kilos, Medwidsky had won the Canadian university championship and the Canadian national championship. The latter gave her the opportunity to represent her country at the world championship in Poland in the fall of that year.

"It was such an amazing feeling to compete at the worlds, especially at the opening ceremonies when everyone walked in wearing their track suits and carrying the Canadian flag," she said. "It was an overwhelming feeling. It really made you want to try even harder."

Medwidsky finished seventh at the world championship. It was a good result, espein May, and if she does well there, she will compete at the world championship in the fall.

And recently, there has been whispers about new frontiers to conquer for women wrestlers.

"There are rumors that women's wrestling will become a demonstration sport at the 2004 Summer Olympics in Greece," said Medwidsky, who hopes to be able to compete there. "It's always been a dream, but it's a more realistic dream now."

Concordia's Tamara Medwidsky (in action, right) is aiming for a gold medal at both the CIAU and Canadian championships.

cially since she'd been in the sport a little more than two years.

Since then, she's completed her sports administration degree and in January she started an MBA at Concordia. In wrestling, she's won a few more tournaments and been profiled by the media quite a bit.

Her plans for the next few months are to prepare for the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union nationals in London, Ont., Feb. 25-26. Then the Canadian championship will be held in Thunder Bay, Ont.,

After four years, she has absolutely no regrets. "I just love it," she says. Her only wish is for others to follow her lead — for more women to take up wrestling.

"It's an amazing sport," she says. "There are physical rewards, a sense of achievement and a lot of pride. Wrestlers are pretty proud people. It has opened a lot of doors for me and it's made me a better person."

DOUBLE DUTY

Geneviève Fagnan is a devoted hockey official and player

When Concordia defender Geneviève Fagnan says she sees a lot of hockey she means it — she's not being facetious.

As captain of the national champion Concordia Stingers women's hockey team, she's on the ice at least six times a week and playing games up to four times a week. Then to help pay for her studies, she officiates — as a referee or linesperson — another three times a week.

"Sometimes I'm physically tired but I'm never bored with hockey," says Fagnan, 23, who is in her 17th season of playing the game she loves. "I'd like to continue playing and officiating for a long time."

Fagnan, a fourth-year Exercise Science student, is equally devoted to her two hockey careers and has climbed to top levels in both.

She is a certified Level 3 official, which qualifies her to work at levels up to bantam AAA and midget A in boys' hockey. In women's hockey she is able to officiate in all categories right up to the international level. But you have to be a Level 4 to be the head official in an international women's game, leaving Fagnan to work the lines.

Her officiating career has taken off lately. Last November, she was assigned to work at five games in the prestigious Three Nations Cup held in Montreal and the Eastern Townships — including the championship between Canada and the United States.

Stinger captain Geneviève Fagnan is hoping to win one more national championship before she leaves university hockey.

"I can't say I was surprised because there are not that many female officials in Quebec," she explains of her international assignments. "But I was very excited."

One of Fagnan's goals is to take her officiating one level higher. She'd like to do her Level 4 certification, which is by invitation only. And she has her eye on another prestigious assignment.

"I'd like to work at the Olympics," she says. "The doors are very wide open for women in officiating right now."

As an athlete she is also accomplished. With Concordia, she's won back-to-back national championships and played versus some of the top teams in the world, including the American and Russian national teams. Last spring, Fagnan was also a member of the Quebec senior provincial team that won the gold medal at the Canadian championship.

Last February Fagnan was named to the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union All-Canadian team, a honor that caught the humble Montreal native off guard.

"I was very surprised," she admits. "Sometimes I don't think I deserve these honors. I'm just a defensive defenceman and I don't score many goals. My mother laughed at my reaction. She said, 'Geneviève, just take it and enjoy it!'"

Concordia head coach Les Lawton's is not as reserved when he speaks of Fagnan's All-Canadian status.

"She is a very composed defenceman who excels in one-on-one situations," he says. "She makes wonderful decisions in critical situations. A perfectionist, she wants to play a flawless shift every time she steps on the ice. Her passion and love for the game make her a very coachable athlete and her enthusiasm is contagious."

The Right Stuff

Carol-Anne Tull combines athletic prowess and boundless energy

Being in close proximity to Carol-Anne Tull is like being near a hurricane. There's a great deal of power, electricity and action, which is riveting, but in the end, you're exhausted just from sharing the same space.

If that's the energy she emanates off the court, can you imagine what it's like to play basketball against Concordia's All-Canadian fourth-year guard?

"She's in the best shape she's ever been in," says Keith Pruden, head coach of the Stingers' women's basketball team. "She brings the intangible talents to our team. She's so tough and determined. She's not going to let anyone be better than she is. I think she's the best on-the-ball defender playing in the country right now."

Last season, Tull was certainly among the best in Canadian university basketball. She was named MVP of the Quebec conference and a second team All-Canadian. In 25 years, only two Concordia women's basketball players have reached All-Canadian status.

"Determination," Tull says when describing the qualities required to be an All-Canadian, "someone who is absolutely fearless. You always have to take risks and chances. It's in my personality. I can't just sit back. I have to make things happen. You have to do things to the fullest. You may only have one chance."

Veteran Stinger guard Carol-Anne Tull is in All-Canadian form again this season.

It's hard to imagine, but there was a time when Tull had turned her back on elite basketball, choosing instead to concentrate on her job in the claims department of an insurance company. However, coach Pruden convinced her to change her focus.

"I never wanted to come to Concordia and play basketball," Tull admits. "Then Keith and I hit it off. He's taught me a lot about the overall understanding of the game and he's taught me respect for the game. I've been taught by a lot of coaches that don't have half the knowledge he has."

"I'm more than glad I came back for basketball and school. I love it. You have to because it goes by so fast."

Another aspect of the Concordia experience she enjoys is the opportunities to interact with children and teens who come to Stinger basketball games.

"I do everything I can for the team," Tull says. "The only thing I do for me is spend time talking to the kids in the stands after the games."

Between those experiences and growing up in a large family (with six older siblings to keep her in line) Tull, a Sociology major from St. Hubert, Que., has decided to pursue a career working with children, possibly juvenile delinquents.

"I have so many nieces and nephews and I wouldn't want any of them to be in a position of not having someone to talk to," she says. "I don't care if it's in a school or a centre. I'll do anything just to be able to listen to and interact with kids and hopefully change a kid's life in a small way."

The Natural

For Eric Zulu – athleticism and drive are the name of the game

Concordia sophomore guard Eric Zulu incites every reaction except indifference when he's on the basketball court.

To dozens of Concordia fans Zulu represents hope. To his teammates - it's admiration. To his opponents - it's likely deference tinged with annoyance.

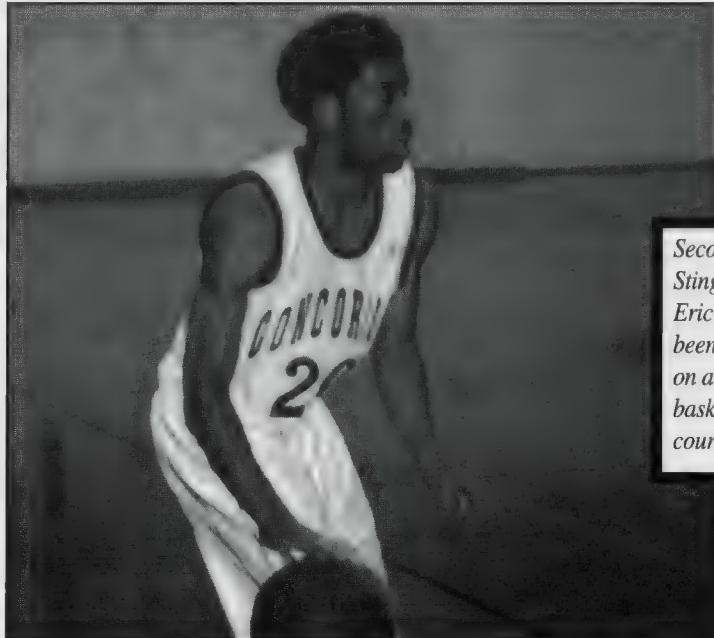

Zulu, a Longueuil resident, is one of the best raw talents to ever grace the court at the Concordia gymnasium. The flashes of brilliance and the broad spectrum of his abilities have people talking about the Stingers becoming a force on the national scene once again. Words like foundation and cornerstone are often uttered along side his name.

It's high praise, but Zulu takes it in stride. He's used to the talk. He's excelled at every sport he's ever played – from hockey to soccer to basketball.

"I'm a natural athlete at every sport I try," he admits with a shrug of his shoulders. "I don't know why."

His father Jude, a computer analyst, has always been a big soccer fan, so Zulu played elite soccer for years. He was a forward who scored in bunches. He started to play basketball, following his older brother Gilles' example, in his first year of high school. Eventually basketball won out over soccer.

Zulu finished up his CEGEP career at Champlain—St. Lambert as the second-leading scorer in the league.

Second-year Stinger guard Eric Zulu has been a leader on and off the basketball court.

At the same time he played for the Quebec Team, which he represented from 1996-'98.

He arrived at Concordia in the fall of '98 and had an immediate impact. He wound up his first season by being named the Rookie of the Year in the Quebec conference. He took the same honor at Concordia's annual athletic awards night.

Now in his second year, Zulu is taking his game up a notch. At the holiday break, he was leading the Quebec scoring race and was second in the nation. He was also named MVP of the Victoria Millennium Classic Tournament, a prestigious competition won by the Stingers.

"Eric has done a great job for us," says teammate Real Kitieu. "He's had pretty big shoes to fill with (All-Canadian) Jay Prosper leaving. It's not easy, but he's been doing it well. We rely a lot on his leadership."

There are so many facets to Zulu's talent, making him and the Stingers hard to defend. Concordia relies a lot on the team's athleticism, especially where the guards are concerned.

"I'm pretty fast so it's hard to cover me," Zulu explains. "Because of my speed, teams have to gap me, but then I'll shoot. If they get close, then I'll drive by them. And what's great is that the coach trusts the guards in the back court. He wants us to shoot when we have a shot."

There's one more skill that adds to Zulu's game.

"We need him to trash talk and get our opponents off their game," says Kitieu.

Zulu, an Economics major, admits confidence, cockiness and a little talk help him on the court. "I play better when I talk," he says with a smile. But he's quick to add, "That's only for basketball. Outside of basketball, I was raised to be respectful."

Fall Review

Of championships, No. 1 rankings and the honor role

The plucky men's rugby team emerged with the only championship for the Stingers last fall. Despite losing its first three games, Concordia was determined to make the season a memorable one. With a single-mindedness rarely seen, the Stingers won two of their last three games and made the playoffs.

In the semifinals, Concordia defeated the McGill Redmen 17-12 and went on to meet the undefeated Bishop's Gaiters in the Quebec university championship game. Jon Webb, a second-year fullback, connected on four penalty kicks on a cold, windy day in Lennoxville, Que., to help the Stingers defeat the Gaiters 17-8 and win the QSSF championship.

The play of the women's rugby team was also a source of great pride. The Stingers finished the season in second place in the Quebec league with a 4-0-1 win-loss-tie record. The only tie was a 10-10 standoff with the McGill Martlets. In the semifinal, Concordia defeated the Ottawa Gee-Gees 32-10. In the QSSF championship, the Stingers suffered a heart-breaking 23-18 loss to the Martlets. The strong showing was enough to earn Concordia a berth in the CIAU women's rugby championship in Guelph, Ont., where the team lost three games, finishing sixth in the nation.

Three members of the women's team and four players with the men's squad were named to 1999 QSSF all-star teams. On the women's side, scrum half Sommer Christie, flanker Candace Patterson and fullback Chantal Hurtubise made the honor roll. Hurtubise was also an All-Canadian. The elite from the men's team were: Mathieu Garston, a veteran back; flyhalf Jon Webb, centre Harry Georgopoulos and flanker Ben Page.

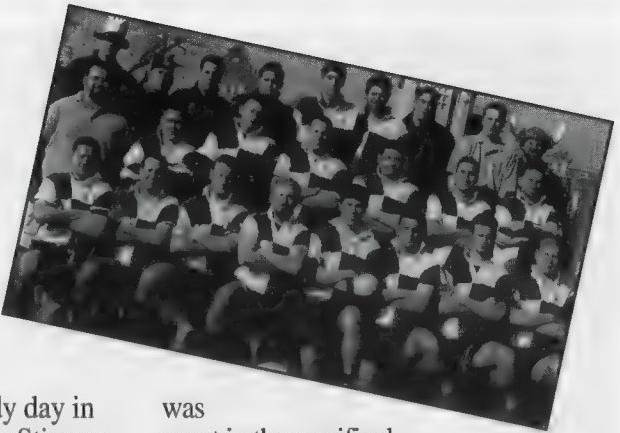

The football team made history when it came charging out of the gate with a 6-0 record and earned the No. 1 ranking in Canada. It was the first time in Concordia's 25-year history that the Stingers held the top ranking in Canada. Along the way, Concordia won both the Shrine Bowl and the Shaughnessy Cup with a 45-0 victory over McGill at Homecoming. Unfortunately, the team lost its last two regular season games and then was upset in the semifinal 42-16 by the Laval Rouge et Or.

All-star honors went to fullback Scott Ashworth, offensive tackle Steve Jobin, centre Matt Orlando, defensive end Wayne Dunn, tackle Terrance Alphonso, cornerback Sean Gordon and linebacker Jason Casey, who was also named the outstanding defensive player in the O-QIFC and a second team All-Canadian. On special teams, punter Burke Dales and place kicker Matt Trudeau were unanimous all-stars.

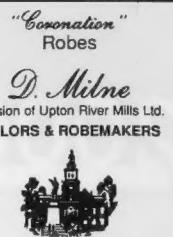

The women's soccer team was much improved in 1999. The Stingers finished with a 6-6 record and made the playoffs for the first time in a few years. In the league semifinal, they put up a great battle before finally losing 3-1 to the McGill Martlets, who were ranked No. 2 in the nation. Laura Lalonde, a rookie, brought some much-needed scoring punch to the team and was rewarded with a spot on the conference's second all-star squad.

The men's soccer team enjoyed a fair amount of success in 1999. The Stingers finished with a 4-2-2 win-loss-tie record and were consistently ranked in the CIAU top 10. Despite defeating the UQAM Citadins twice in regular season play, the Stingers were upset 1-0 in the semifinal by the Citadins. Five members of the Stingers were all-stars. Defender Frank Pons was a first team all-star and an All-Canadian, while goalkeeper Valdis Tomsons, mid-fielders Ari Angelopoulos and Xavier Rena, and forward Amar Bedawieh were named to the second team.
